The Bonilla Family

Battling: 6-year-old, Nicole

Nicole is a 6-year-old little girl who, although her mother found difficulty in conceiving for many years, is the first daughter, niece, and granddaughter in her family. The Bonilla family could never anticipate the nightmare and devastation they would encounter when they would soon learn that their angel was diagnosed with stage 4, Neuroblastic Cancer, on October 20, 2013.

The primary tumor was found in her stomach but had metastasized throughout her body, including her head. Surgery is not an option for treatment and the healthcare providers have given a very slim prognosis. With only their faith in the grace of God, they continue to pray for a miracle.

The family continues to battle more obstacles than one. While the emotional stream can overtake them as Nicole's health declines, they also carry the great financial burden they face. Visiting from Honduras, they are living in Fort Worth, travel weekly to Houston for treatments and are without insurance. However bleak their situation looks, the Bonilla family is not one that wants to give up. They continue to fight the fight for their little girl as she undergoes experimental treatments. At this time, there's nothing else available for her.

This year we join to help this family have a wonderful Christmas!
